An Indian table tennis player said the "cardboard" beds are so uncomfortable that they faced trouble "sleeping peacefully" for the first couple of nights. "But that is something we still got used to. The real problem is at the dining hall, where either there isn't enough food or, if it is available, the queue is very, very long," the paddler added.

the official.

The Indian contingent, meanwhile, is bracing itself for other issues which "can be under its control". On top of that list is transport.

Team India has kept one station wagon, a mini SUV, two minivans and four other vehicles on standby to ferry athletes from the Village to the Games venues, which are spread all over Paris.

plaint regarding the theft of a bank card. The report added that the individual was contacted by his bank for a "suspicious transaction" of Australian $1,500.

Nagal, meanwhile, said he wasn't impressed with the Village as a whole. "This is the biggest tournament in the world for every sport. I think they could have done a better job," he said.
